WHY SUFFER WITH BACKACHE, KIDNEYS OR RHEUMATISM NOW?

Letter Told of Long-looked-for Prescription.

Dear Readers—If I can do any good in the world for others, I wish to do it, and I feel that it is my duty to write about the wonderful results I received from the use of "Anurie." I was suffering from kidney and bladder troubles, scalding urine, backache and rheumatism, and feet and ankles swelled so that at times I could not walk without assistance. Had taken several different kinds of kidney remedies but all failed. I sent for a box of Dr. Pierce's newest discovery, "Anurie," which I received by mail in tablet form. I soon got better and am convinced that this popular new medicine is good. I wish to recommend it to my neighbors and everybody suffering from such troubles.

Mrs. M. J. SARGENT.

NOTE: You've all undoubtedly heard of the famous Dr. Pierce and his well-known medicines. Well, this prescription, is one that has been successfully used for many years by the physicians and specialists at Dr. Pierce's Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Bureau, of Buffalo, N. Y., for kidney complaints, and diseases arising from disorders of the kidneys and bladder, such as backache, weak back, rheumatism, dropsy, congestion of the kidneys, inflammation of the bladder, scalding urine, and urinary troubles.

Up to this time, "Anurie" has not been on sale to the public, but by the persuasion of many patients and the increased demand for this wonderful health tablet, Doctor Pierce has finally decided to put it into the stores, or send 10 cents for large trial package or 50 cents for full treatment.

Simply ask for Doctor Pierce's Anurie Tablets. There can be no imitation. Every package of "Anurie" is sure to be Dr. Pierce's. You will find the signature on the package just as you do on Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, the ever-famous friend to ailing women, and Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, proven by years to be the greatest general tonic and re-constructer for any one, besides being the best blood-maker known.

He put the letter into the fire, and too much disturbed to go on with his letters just then, put on a hat and strolled out into the garden, where he knew he should find his wife taking her usual morning stroll by the lake near the plantation.

But he was detained by Hugo, who allied him on his foot and told him that he would find Lady Ursula on the other side of the ornamental bridge, at the foot of the hill. "What is she doing there?" asked Paul, as he was about to stroll on in the direction indicated.

"She's talking to a man who's got in and lost his way, I think," said Hugo.

Paul was startled. Who was this man, and what was he saying to Lady Ursula? The most sinister thoughts crowded into his mind, and knowing the very perilous position in which he stood he was much alarmed at this intelligence.

He skirted the flower-beds, ran through the narrow path under the trees on the left, reached the lake, saw no one on or about the ornamental bridge that crossed it.

He stood still and listened for the sound of voices to direct him, for here the trees and undergrowth were so thick that it was not possible to see far in any direction, and there were at least a dozen paths, any one of which she might have taken. In the meantime he was wasting time that might be precious.

He called his wife by name, but there was no answer. He ran across the bridge, and looked and listened again. Not a glimpse of her long white coat was to be seen anywhere. He was getting frantic with excitement, and he called to her by name again.

He called twice, and then had a fancy that he heard a sound like a cry as if it were in reply.

He dashed at random into one of the paths, and plunging into the plantation, came out at the other side, upon the top of a slope of park-like ground on the outer edge of the grounds.

As he scanned the prospect, he caught the flutter of a white coat behind a clump of evergreens at the bottom of the hill. Overjoyed to have found his wife, he ran down the slope towards her; but before he had gone many steps there came into full view not only his wife, but the person to whom she was talking.

It was Will Evans. For one moment he stood still again, overwhelmed with his fears. Then, as he started to run again, he saw Evans thrusting into Lady Ursula's hands something small and white.

An exclamation broke from Paul's lips, and then he cried—

"Hallo, hallo!" But she did not look up; she was bending, fascinated, over the small white scrap of paper which she held in her hand. She was reading it.

Paul tried to cry out again, but his voice failed him. She was still reading, but Evans looked up saw Paul, and gliding quickly away, disappeared over the wall that shut in the grounds.

Lady Ursula's eyes were raised suddenly; Paul was not near enough to see the expression of her face, but she crushed up the paper and walked on, walked quickly in a direct line for the gate, as if she did not know where she was going.

She took half a dozen steps, stopped, staggered, and fell in a heap on the ground.

Paul strode down the hill and stooped over her as she lay on the ground. But she did not know it. The paper she had been reading had fluttered to the ground as she fell, and Paul picked it up and thrust it into his pocket. He had no need to read it, for he knew what it was that had struck his wife down.

It was the agreement he had signed and given to his confederates in Paris, and contained these words—

"I agree to pay to Brady Gane and to William Evans, within one month from this date, the sum of five thousand pounds apiece, or to hand over to them within that period jewellery to that selling value, in consideration of their allowing me to retain the whole of the jewellery as follows" (here followed the list of his wedding presents to Lady Ursula) "at present equally the property of myself and the said Brady Gane and William Evans."

It was signed "Syd Tomkinson," indeed, but the handwriting was that of Paul Payne, and Lady Ursula had understood.

CHAPTER XXI.

Paul was too much alarmed to have leisure to consider all the aspects of this catastrophe. He was conscious that he was ruined—matrimonially, socially—that, as he would himself have expressed it, "the game was up."

But with his wife lying senseless on the grass at his feet, he had no time for thought. Action was necessary, and that action had to be immediate.

As he raised her from the ground and looked at her white face, he thought that she was dead, and for a moment of paralysing horror he held her against his breast, stunned, stupidly, and overwhelmed.

He had been well aware that he was falling under her gentle influence, that he felt for her what he had believed himself incapable of feeling for any woman; but not until that agonizing moment had he understood how deep were the roots of the feeling with which she had inspired him; not till then had he realized that he loved her profoundly.

Recovering himself, he tried to carry her to his house, when he had loosened the clothes about her throat and realized his helplessness in dealing with such an emergency.

But the ground sloped upwards, and Lady Ursula was a tall, finely-built young woman—not the sort of insignificant slip of humanity that can be carried any distance without difficulty.

So he shouted as he went, and his voice rang through the plantation and evoked an answering cry in a voice which he recognized as that of his brother-in-law.

Paul shouted again, and in a few seconds Lord Eastling came crashing through the undergrowth of the wood and, emerging on the crest of the hill, uttered an exclamation of dismay at the sight below him.

"Come, help me, Quick! She's fainted," explained Paul.

And Lord Eastling, under his directions, joined in the task of carrying the unconscious lady as rapidly as possible up to the house.

The young man was full of curiosity, for he discerned more than a mere attack of physical weakness in this loss of consciousness on the part of his sister. Lady Ursula was a healthy woman, not given to attacks of "faintness," "nerves," or anything of that sort. Paul, too, it seemed to him, was oppressed by something more than alarm at his wife's illness.

"Up to her room, out of the way of everybody," was Paul's brief direction when they reached the house. So to her room they took her, and laid her on the little couch where Paul had sat with her on the previous morning.

He realized, as he laid her down, that there were to be no more tender looks for him, no more caresses, no more forgiveness.

He was exposed, he was done for. The wife who had loved him, submitted even to ungentle treatment at his hands on one memorable occasion, who had forgiven him, clung to him, now knew him for a thief, a liar, and a pariah among honorable men.

During the past few weeks he had forgotten, in the charm of an increasingly happy existence with the wife he loved daily more dearly, the life of shifts, of ill-deeds, which he wanted to leave behind.

And now it sprang up from the past and told him, unmistakably, that he must go back to it, that he must leave the society of his social equals, that he must submit to be driven out by them indeed, and must sink back into the shady underworld out of which he had, under another name, contrived to climb.

At this moment Paul forgot all the fears and doubts, the subtleties and anxieties, which had beset him during these past few weeks, in the deeper emotions which had made them endurable.

At the moment he remembered only the loving looks and tender words of this wife who had always been much too good for him, but whose goodness he had understood and had begun to reverence.

Lady-Emmeline and Lady Ursula's maid were busying themselves about the unconscious woman, and Paul and Lord Eastling withdrew, all anxiety, to the extreme end of the room, eagerly waiting for the first news of her recovery under the restoratives that were being applied.

Lord Eastling wanted to know something about the circumstances of this attack, but Paul answered vaguely.

"She'll tell you everything herself, when she comes to her senses," he said, without looking away from Lady Ursula's white face.

He was watching her intently, half forgetting, indeed, the perils of his own position, as the minutes went by and the fear began to obsess him that the shock of discovery might have been too much for her, and that she would never come back to life again.

Lord Eastling, suspicious as he was as to the cause of his sister's seizure, was touched and softened by the agony on his brother-in-law's face.

Nervous & Sleepless

Take 2 Tablets at Bedtime and you will arise feeling Refreshed, Bright & Vigorous.

When you feel gloomy and depressed and cannot sleep, suspect your nerves. When you shrink from company and would rather be alone you are losing confidence in yourself, and that can only mean weak nerves. It is not natural to be solitary and unsociable, it shows clearly that vitality has become reduced, and the nervous system correspondingly weakened. But take Dr. Cassell's Tablets for such a condition and you will be astonished at the results, astonished at the bright new health you will gain, at the splendid vigour and vitality they will give you.

Mr. Poole, a business man of 60, Infirmary Road, Sheffield, England, says:—"I had lost all confidence in myself, and was actually afraid to meet people. The alertness and activity I had formerly possessed were gone. My digestion was feeble, and sleeplessness was terrible. But when I commenced taking Dr. Cassell's Tablets I soon felt better. Now I am as well and fit as any man of my age."

Doctor Tells How to Strengthen Eyesight 50 per cent. In One Week's Time in Many Instances

A Free Prescription You Can Have Filled and Use at Home

LONDON.—Do you wear glasses? Are you a victim of eye strain or other eye weakness? If so, you will be glad to know that according to Dr. Lewis there is real hope for you. Many whose eyes were failing say they have had their eyes renewed through the principle of this wonderful free prescription. One man says, after trying it: "I was almost blind; could not see to read at all. Now I can read everything without any glasses and my eyes do not water any more. At night they would pain dreadfully; now they feel fine all the time. It was like a miracle to me." A lady who used it says: "The darkness seemed heavy with or without glasses, but after using this prescription for fifteen days everything seems clear. I can even read fine print without glasses." It is believed that thousands who wear glasses can now discard them in a reasonable time and multitudes more will be able to strengthen their eyes so as to be spared the trouble and expense of ever getting glasses. Eye troubles of many descriptions may be wonderfully benefited by following the simple rules. Here is the prescription: Go to any active drug store and get a bottle of Bon-Opto tablets. Drop one tablet in a glass of water and allow it to dissolve. With this liquid bathe the eyes two to four times daily. You should notice your eyes clear up perceptibly right from the start; and inflammation will quickly disappear. If your eyes are bothered now before it is too late. Many hopelessly blind might have been saved if they had cared for their eyes in time. Note: Another prominent Physician to whom the above article was submitted, said: "Bon-Opto is a very remarkable remedy. Its constituent ingredients are well known to eminent eye specialists and widely prescribed by them. The manufacturers guarantee it to strengthen eyesight 50 per cent. in one week's time in many instances or refund the money. It can be obtained from any good drug store and is one of the very few preparations which should be kept on hand for regular use in almost every family." The Valmar Drug Co., Store 6, Toronto, will fill your orders if your druggist cannot.

Training Schools For Farm Women

In several counties of England, a system of short courses for the training of women in farm work has been adopted. The courses last two weeks, and the training consists of whatever work may be going on at the time, such as weeding, corn, hoeing, mowing, dairying generally, hay-making, etc. Students for dairying instruction are required to be at the dairy farm at 6 a.m., but the schedule for the general day runs like this: Rising, 6 a.m.; breakfast, 7 a.m.; assemble for work, 7.45; start work, 8; dinner, 12 to 1; cease work, 5 p.m.; meat tea, 5.45; bed time, 9; lights out, 9.30. Each student is required to pay five shillings per week toward the cost of board, lodging and instruction and is paid three pence per hour for work accomplished. It is stated that the wages generally more than cover the board and lodging fee.

SOLDIERS GOT RELIEF FROM SORENESS

Boys on the Border Relieved Their Pains and Aches with Sloan's Liniment

Once upon a time Norman Jones, serving in the National Guard at El Paso, returned to camp after a strenuous 15-mile hike foot-sore and leg-weary. He had not been long in active service and his shoulders, back and limbs felt the after-effects of marching.

Remembering Sloan's Liniment, Jones applied it to the sore spots and went to bed. He writes: "I arose the next morning feeling fine; in fact, I had entirely forgotten about the hike and went out for a four-hour drill in the sun as spry as ever."

Private Jones passed the experience along, and many a boy on the border relieved the agony of sprains, strains, bruises, insect bites, cramped muscles, rheumatic twinges, etc., by the use of Sloan's Liniment.

Easily applied without rubbing. At all druggists, 25c, 50c and $1.00.

CHILDHOOD AILMENTS

Childhood ailments in most cases come through some derangement of the stomach or bowels. Baby's Own Tablets have been proved by thousands of mothers to be the greatest medicine known for the cure of these ailments, simply because they regulate the bowels and sweeten the stomach. Concerning them Mrs. Napolean Lambert, St. Ignace, Que., writes: "Baby's Own Tablets are an excellent medicine for childhood ailments and I am well pleased with their use." The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

The Prince's Answer

A nervous officer, who was afraid that the Prince of Wales might be injured through venturing into opposed positions, tried to restrain the Prince. The Prince, however, would not be restrained. At last, in despair, the officer said, impressively: "Think, sir, at least of your mother, the Queen." Irritated beyond endurance, the Prince cried, "Oh, rubbish! Isn't my mother just the same sort of woman as every other fellow's mother?"

Co-Operative Implement Societies for England

Numerous co-operative implement societies are being formed in Great Britain. Such societies have been in operation in Ireland since 1912, but in England they are an entirely new departure and have been brought into being with a view to alleviating, in some measure the scarcity of labor. The capital of each society is usually around a thousand pounds, or $5,000, divided into one pound shares. Five per cent. is paid up and a bank called upon for an overdraft to the extent of the uncalled capital.

A Most Extraordinary Cure of Epileptic Fits

Mother Had Appealed to Three Doctors in Vain—Cured Four Months Ago by Use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food

This letter from Mrs. Noxell is endorsed by Mr. H. J. Mahaffy, druggist, Port Colborne, Ont., as being true. While it reports a most remarkable cure of epileptic fits by use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, it only goes to corroborate similar cures reported by others.

Mrs. Henrietta M. Noxell, R. R. No. 1, Humberstone, Ont., writes: "I can't help writing to you, as I want you to know what a blessing Dr. Chase's Nerve Food and Kidney-Liver Pills have been to my boy. He was taken with very violent fits, would twitch all over, his eyes would turn towards his nose, his jaws set and his lips turn almost purple. He would clench his fists tightly, become unconscious and then go into a long sleep. After several hours he would wake up sighing and so weak he could not stand. I was afraid he would die and took him to the doctor, who doctored his case epilepsy. As his medicine was not effective and the fits continued, I took him to another doctor at Port Hill, but his medicine seemed to make him worse.

"As the boy's nerves were in such a state that he could not sit down or lie down, and the fits continued, I took him to a third doctor, who said that he would not undertake to cure epilepsy, as no doctor could cure it. That night I went home very much discouraged, and when I took my dose of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food I gave my boy a dose, and that was the first night in weeks that he slept well. I kept on giving him the Nerve Food three times a day and occasionally a Kidney-Liver Pill to keep the kidneys and bowels active. I can, with a clear conscience, say that he has not had even one fit since beginning this treatment. I give him no other medicine. He looks and feels well, and as there have been no recurrences of the old trouble for four months, I believe he has been cured. I can never cease to be grateful to the manufacturers of these medicines, for I am sure I would have lost my boy if it had not been for Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

Mr. H. J. Mahaffy, druggist, Port Colborne, Ont., writes: "It is to certify that I am acquainted with Mrs. Henrietta M. Noxell, and believe that the statement she has made in regard to Dr. Chase's Nerve Food is true and correct."

North Dakota Scheme Tried in Saskatchewan

Organizing Farmers' Non-Partisan Political League in Effort to Control Legislature

Organization of a farmers' non-partisan political league is being attempted in Saskatchewan, and already, according to one official organizer, nearly 2,000 farmers have paid $15 each into a common fund. The organizer states that they intend to try and capture the legislature and use the credit of the province for the financing of their schemes, which include government-owned flour mills, elevators and packing plants. They also desire rural credit banks. The campaign will be carried on all winter, and the new league hopes to take the field at the next provincial election. The plan is imported from North Dakota, where the farmers captured the legislature three to one at the last state elections.

Battleships with Eighteen Inch Guns

Reported That Great Britain Is Equipping New Battleships With Monster Guns

Battleships equipped with 18-inch guns, three inches bigger than any now afloat and two inches greater than the largest guns projected for the new battleships and battle cruisers to be added to the American navy, are under construction in Great Britain, according to unofficial advice, which is given credence by naval officials in Washington.

The big weapons are designed primarily, officials believe, for use against land fortifications. As a means of developing floating forts, which could throw great projectiles into land fortifications out of sight over the horizon, the reported British venture in battleship construction is regarded by ordnance experts in Washington as having great possibilities. They estimate that shells weighing nearly 3,000 pounds could be used effectively, and point out that an eighteen-inch gun would have a range equal to, if not greater, than the average European coast defense ordnance.

The largest guns carried now by any naval vessel, so far as known, by records in Washington are the 16-inch rifles, mounted on some of the latest British, German and Italian battleships.

Larger Uniforms Wanted

Probably never in the history of the world has it happened that a great part of a nation has improved its physical standard so rapidly, says The Nation. In whole battalions of Lancashire recruits the uniforms that were issued on enlistment have been exchanged since for larger sizes, and the people of the districts where the new armies have been billeted have remarked the extraordinary change that has come over these soldiers with a few months of open-air and good food.

THE SHADOW OF BROKEN HEALTH

Can Be Quickly Dispelled Through the Use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills

When the shadow of poor health follows you, and you begin to fade and friends look serious, then is the time you should remember that thousands just as hopeless have been cured and restored to the sunshine of health by the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. These pills actually make new, rich blood which brings a glow of health to anaemic cheeks; cures indigestion, headaches and backaches, drives out the stinging pains of rheumatism and neuralgia, strengthens the nerves and relieves as no other medicine can do the aches and pains from which womanfolk alone suffer. In any emergency of poor health give Dr. Williams' Pink Pills a fair trial, and they will not disappoint you. Here is a case that will bring hope to many a weary sufferer. Mrs. E. C. Taylor, Ascot Ave., Toronto, says:

A few years ago I was so run down with anaemia that I could scarcely walk about the house, and was not able to leave it. I had no color; my appetite was poor and I was constantly troubled with headaches, dizzy spells and general disinclination to move about or do anything. I tried many medicines, but none of them helped me, and my friends thought I was in a decline. One day a friend who was in to see me asked if I had tried Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I had heard of this medicine often, but had not used it, so I determined to give it a trial. I certainly got a pleasant surprise, for after using two boxes I could feel an improvement in my condition. Continuing the use of these pills, I began to regain my health, the headaches and dizzy spells were disappearing, and I began to gain weight. People began enquiring what I was taking and I was not slow to give Dr. Williams' Pink Pills the credit. I took the pills for less than two months, and completely regained my old-time health and strength. I hope my experience may convince some doubting person as to the great merit of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, as I certainly have cause to be a firm champion of them.

You can get these pills through any dealer in medicine or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Weight of the Big Guns' Shells

It is estimated that the 18-inch guns of the British Navy will each weigh about 150 to 160 tons, and that the weight of the projectile will be about 2,900 pounds. The new 16-inch guns of the United States Navy will throw projectiles weighing about 2,100 pounds. The 15-inch gun carried by the Queen Elizabeths throw a shell weighing about 1,920 pounds. United States 14-inch shell weighs 1,400 pounds.

General as Trench Digger

A new story is going the rounds about General Birdwood, commander-in-chief of the Australian forces. It seems that at Gallipoli the necessity for digging the soldiers into shelter was so urgent that everybody was put to the job, even the General took a hand on more than one occasion. The weather was bad and the work hard, and the New Zealanders when questioned by General Birdwood as to how he found things, ventured to make a mild protest at the amount of trench digging to be done in the future. "Well, my dear," said the General, "I know it's pretty tough, but it's got to be done, and I'm hanged if I am going to do it all myself."

Such is his method, and every man who ever served under him loves him for his humor and comradeship.

Economic Problems in Canada

It is true that, to offset the extra cost of his food and raiment which the Canadian now faces, he has, if an active worker, been getting more and steadier work and at considerable increase of wage. Nor has the Canadian producer of basic food supplies sought to complain of. The main element yet to be affected and forced to endure the pinch is the salaried group, which is unorganized, not vocal in any commanding way, unskilled in furthering group interests, and not receiving any increase of income while meeting enforced expenditure for food, raiment and other necessities, and also in some cases, facing new forms of taxation. As it is from this class, and not from the proletariat, that many leading radicals of all countries come, it is interesting to speculate as to what will be the effect upon coming political and social changes in the Dominion of any discontent that may arise within the salaried officials' group and among men practising the professions, following prolonged experience with an era of high prices for daily necessities.—Christian Science Monitor.

Best Liniment of All Destroys Every Pain But Never Burns

"How thankful we are to get hold of such a wonderful household remedy as Nerviline," writes Mrs. E. P. Lamontagne from her home near Wetaskiwin, Alberta. "In this far-away section, far away from a doctor or druggist, every family needs a good supply of liniment. Nerviline is the best of all. It destroys every pain, but never burns. We use Nerviline as a score of ways. If rheumatism, aching back, pain in the side, sciatica or stiff neck,—you can laugh at them if you have lots of Nerviline handy. For earache, toothache or cramps I don't think anything could act more quickly. For a general all-round pain remedy I can think of nothing more valuable and speedy to cure than Nerviline."

The above letter is convincing—it tells how reliable and trusty this old-time remedy is. Nerviline for forty years has been a household word in Canada. Scarcely a home in Canada you can find without Nerviline. Every community has its living examples of the wonderful curative properties of Nerviline which will cure pain, and aches anywhere in the joints or muscles. It's penetrating, soothing, warming and safe for young and old to use. Get the large 50c family size bottle; it's the most economical. Small trial size 25c at any dealer's anywhere.

She Was Shopping

She had been sitting in the furniture shop for nearly two hours, inspecting the new stock of linens. Roll after roll the perspiring assistant brought out, but still she seemed dissatisfied. From her dress she judged that she was a person of wealth, and thought it likely she would have a good order to give. When at last he had shown her the last roll he paused in despair.

"I'm sorry, madam," he said apologetically, "but if you could wait I could get some more pieces from the factory. Perhaps you would call again."

The prospective customer gathered her belongings together and rose from the chair. "Yes, do," she said, with a gracious smile, "and ask them to send you one or two with very small designs, suitable for putting in the bottom of a canary's cage."—Chicago Journal.

"Pa, what's the fountain of youth?" "That's a soda fountain, my boy."—Buffalo Express.

Strictly British Virtues

A correspondent in the Nation has suggested that while the Germans have the intellectual virtues of diligence and system, the British, on the other hand, have the higher intellectual virtues of initiative and originality. It rather reminds one of Walter Pater's famous distinction between the "centripetal" Doric genius, which ordered and systematized ideas, and the "centrifugal" Ionic genius, which was always flying off at a tangent after new ideas. The former would correspond to the German and the latter to the British types. If there is anything in it, we may perhaps explain the British initiative by the intellectual and social freedom nurtured by nearly a thousand years of immunity from invasion.—Manchester Guardian.

TRENCHES

I suppose we're a lot of heathen—
Don't live on the angel plan—
But we're sticking it here in the trenches.

And doing the best we can,
While slackers over in Canada
Who rave about Kingdom Come
Ain't pleased with our ability.
And are wanting to stop our run.
Water they say, would be better
Water! Great Scott!—out here!
We're up to our knees in water;
Do they think we're standing in beer?
Oh, it sounds alright from a coldish,
When you sit in a cushioned pew.

But try four days in the trenches
And see what water will do.
They haven't the heart to say "Thank you"
For fighting in their behalf.
Perhaps they object to our smoking!
Perhaps it's a fault to laugh!
Some of the coffee-faced blighters,
I think must be German-bred:
It's time they called in a doctor.
For it's water they have in the head.

FINAL RUMBLE IN TITANIC STRUGGLE

THE HOLY WORLD SPEED BOUND

THE ENEMY'S FOOL'S PARADISE IS SHATTERED

Germany Still Cannot Give Up the Idea That Its Vast Military System Must Somehow Prove Invincible, No Matter What Forces It Has Challenged

John L. Garvin, editor of the London Observer, writes: The battle of the Titans has been joined. The final drama is opened and it will hold the world spellbound through act on act before the denouement comes near.

As I transmit this at one of the most exciting moments of the war, known events are big and strange enough to satisfy any appetite for sensation, if such a thing remains anywhere in this solemn time. But in addition to the facts the air is wild with report. Once again we are told reality in the Balkans will beggar the invention of playwrights and novelists, who seek their themes in imaginary kings, courts and political conspiracies.

The fact alone that all others is that Germany has awakened to realities at last. Rumania's blow shattered a fool's paradise. It is the fight for life on the part of the world, and it is the part of this formidable people which has, no doubt, made every error into which pride and vanity could lead a nation, still cannot give up the desperate idea that its vast military system must somehow prove invincible, no matter what forces it has.

Allies, who have believed in taking a cool measure of the enemy, are under no deception. If we were, we should be a nation, still cannot give up the desperate idea that its vast military system must somehow prove invincible, no matter what forces it has.

Germany's fight for life must necessarily be a large business. More than 18 months ago, when seeking to arouse my own country to the size of her undertaking, I ventured to say, and to repeat often afterward, that Germany was no more deceived about the issue of the war than was Britain about the cost, and that there would be a fight to stagger humanity before Germany went down.

Since the spring of last year that estimate has proved to be an accurate forecast. But now the cost now — knows it better and faces it more grimly than the outer world even yet supposes. Germany does not yet admit the issue. She cannot afford to admit it. She is absolutely bound to deny that she is going to be beaten until she is.

One extraordinary moral advantage, however, has been already wrung from the enemy. Hindenburg's appointment meant several things, but was in the first case an open claim that the Hohenzollerns had broken down and the men who made them are disappearing.

The Hohenzollerns think of their house first. That has always been their tradition. Whatever the kaiser's belated step may do for his country, it is a shrewd stroke in the interests of the dynasty. Bismarck, who got rid of Bismarck, would never allow any subject to overshadow himself. Why, then, did he at the eleventh hour to acquire more humility? The subject now placed at the head of affairs as the military dictator and national leader of Germany is summoned to a thankless task. If he succeeds lustre will be reflected on the dynasty itself in the old way, when the Hohenzollerns were the great managing agents of the crown.

But if Hindenburg fails, the whole weight of the blame is less likely to fall on William II. No one who is at all acquainted with the importance of dynastic politics in Berlin and Vienna will think this suggestion far fetched. Apart from all this, the kaiser has every reason for self-distrust, and whatever else may be said about Hindenburg, he knows his mind.

There has been, indeed, a series of ghastly blunders, showing what I have previously described as the blind side of German leadership. Bismarck thought that the kaiser's temperament would be his doom and his country's — that it would be imbecile and fatal policy to challenge Britain and Russia together as well as France.

Germany threw away the last of her big chances by the catastrophe of adventure against Verdun, while Russia was given time to raise her new power to a maximum in the way that brought in Rumania. There is a soul in the central empire who does not now realize that the attempted invasion of Italy through the Trentino was a mistake as grievous as any of the worst blunders.

The infuriated under-estimate of Russia which Falkenhayn seems to have shared with the Austrian, Conrad von Hotzendorf.

"Blinks is the most excitable man I ever met."

"Why this sudden outburst?"

"Last night he heard an amateur actor recite Hamlet's soliloquy, via phonograph, and he threw eggs at the machine." — Philadelphia Ledger.

The Frenzy of Despair

Teutons Will Not Accept Defeat Without Expending All Their Fury

The prospect of falling from the clouds, whence all the kingdoms of the earth lay at the nation's feet, into a vast, damp, interminable, is enough to fire the most sluggish citizen. It will nerve the arm of Germany, who in her own eyes is the super-nation; the chosen people of the "good old God," the spirit that broods over the face of the world would have created it anew. Germany is force incarnate in a race, and therefore force is right, and Germany above all peoples. That creed is at once a political tenet and a religious faith. It is not a direct emanation from Prussian militarism. It is a fruit of the union of Prussian militarism with the latter-day German philosophy and pedagogy. Schoolmasters from Prussian militarism, all faiths preach it, historians study the annals of mankind in the light of it. University professors expound it. State-men take it as the basis of their policy and the kaiser looks upon it as the object of his mission. In a word, it is the cement of German unity, the secret force of German expansion, the spring of German enterprise and organization. Destroy that belief, and that hope, thrust that goal beyond the reach of the Teuton, and the vast structure raised by the combined efforts of generations will collapse. Riches, ease, domination, will be snatched from the grasp that was closing on them. And that is the task which the Allies will have set themselves when they reject the coming peace proposals. To this the most terrible fate that ever befell a great nation, the Teutons will not resign themselves without gathering up all their strength and hurling it against the entente with the fury of despair. — London Daily Telegraph.

Russia's Arctic Port

New Port of Murman Gives Russia a Great Advantage

One of the great difficulties of the Allies in the past has been to secure for Russia ample supplies of munitions. Only a few ports were available for the importation of supplies. One of these, Archangel, is not only remote from the battlefield, but in addition is closed by ice during the winter months. Vladivostok, while usually ice-free, is a long distance from the front. The activity on the eastern front, coupled with reports of the presence of German submarines in the Arctic region, shows that the enemy is alive to the tremendous advantages that Russia's new open port confers on Brusiloff's advancing armies.

Russia now possesses in the port of Murman, on the Arctic Ocean, an ice-free harbor, situated on the White Sea and the North Cape which will solve her most formidable problem: the equipment of her new armies and the maintenance of supplies from foreign workshops. Owing to the moderating influence of the Gulf Stream, which is not felt at Archangel, the climate here is such that the well-sheltered harbor affords anchorage for forty large vessels. The railway linking Murman to Petrograd is nine hundred miles long, as compared with a haulage of six thousand miles on the Trans-Siberian Railway connecting Petrograd and Vladivostok. The building of the Murman railway has been one of the notable achievements of the war. The difficulties encountered were very great. Much of the region through which the railway runs is practically uninhabited. There were no roads for the conveyance of materials and workmen, and in some places the survey led through heavy granite deposits and primeval forests. Great tracks of bog also added to the problems of construction. Over hundreds of miles the track is laid on piles. Already the line is virtually completed for the conveyance of munitions, and before the end of the year it will be open for general traffic.

Although the value of Murman port for war purposes cannot be overestimated, it is not the only advantage it realized only when peace returns and the Empire of the Czar turns to the more profitable pursuit of a world-wide trade. — Toronto Globe.

Canadian Cheese in Great Britain

Over six million pounds of Canadian cheese were sold the other day in the London, England, market. It was the highest sale for cheese that the British Government had been heavy buyers during the preceding week, and prices in consequence ruled high, from 10s. to 10s. 6d. per cwt. (112 lbs.).

General Brusiloff

Whimsical Stories Regarding the Celebrated Russian General

An achievement so brilliant as that of General Brusiloff, who, in the splendor of dawn from the midst of darkness, inevitably arouses an eager desire to know something of him; and in the course of knowledge, gives birth to all kinds of fancies and imaginings. One of the best newspapers in New York printed a day or two after the beginning of his great offensive, a charming and whimsical article, alleging that about the unknown personality of the Russian General were already gathering all the stories of military prowess that had served for Alexander, for Caesar, for Napoleon; he was fast becoming a Solar Myth.

And we have had since then a curiously detailed story that Brusiloff is only a name, that the victor on the eastern battle line is really the ill-starred Sir Hector Macdonald redivivus, come back to repeat the triumph of Omdurman. And in the midst of this legend of a miraculous return wreathes itself about every dominant personality, not only the spiritual heroes like Guan and Zorostro, but the men of war, like Friedrich Barbarossa, asleep in the Kyffhäuser, Shivaji of the Maharrata hills, and now, for the second time, about the fine soldier who forfeited the renown won in the Sudan. So insistent is the sense of immortality aroused by the Russian advance, that on one of the country roads just outside Lublin, a little chap, a genuine little Pole, came trotting along the road on his way to the front. His knees were pulled up almost to his chin. General Brusiloff, standing in the middle of the road, cried "Halt!" as though the boy had been a squadron of dragoons. The terrified youngster pulled up short. Then the corps commander stepped to the side of the road and lengthened first one of his stirrup-leathers and then the other, and put the boy's feet back into the stirrups. Then, starting him once more on his way, he commented whimsically: "They will quote that as an instance of the Russian oppression of the Poles!" It was by the way, one of his griefs. The boy's efforts had won almost no cordial response from the Poles of Lublin; they remained icily aloof, in spite of the kindest overtures of Charles Johnston, in the Atlantic.

Trans-Country Highway

Would Furnish Work for Many Returned Soldiers at Low Cost

The members of the Canadian Automobile Association had a conference at the Hotel Cecil, Ottawa, last night. Minister of Public Works, on the building of a transcontinental highway from coast to coast. L. B. Howland, president of the Canadian Automobile Association, Toronto, and A. L. Caron, Montreal, president of the Automobile Club of Canada, were present. Mr. Rogers the necessity for construction of such a road.

Mr. Rogers replied that the plan had his own merits. He said that not only would the construction of a road be a good thing for the country, but it was a national necessity. To build a road of this kind, an outstanding undertaking to take up after the war. It would be the means of providing work for many who came back, and it was one wished for some outdoor occupation. It would also be the means of enabling the government to hold out prospects of employment to immigrants.

On the whole, he said, support the transcontinental highway with all his power, both in parliament and before the public. He said that the construction of the road would necessarily be expensive. He said it would go through the north country to the coast, and the way would follow the railway tracks.

Afterwards the delegation went to see Dr. J. H. Deputy Postmaster-General. They asked him to do something in connection with the dangerous way rural mail boxes are placed on the highways. Dr. Coulter promised to look into the complaint.

Alberta Has Large Coal Deposits

Coal Mining Industry an Important Factor in the West

Probably sixty per cent. of the coal deposits in the Dominion of Canada are to be found in the province of Alberta. The bulk of the coal in every part from the international boundary north to Lake Athabasca. Government figures for 1913 (the latest available) show that Alberta produced 4,144,377 tons, valued at $1,462,622. This was considerably more than the combined production of the remaining eight provinces of Canada. Why a larger tonnage is not produced is because of labor scarcity and of comparative smallness of markets. To haul coal long distances is expensive. The coal is not practically all the output is used in the West. As the population of Alberta and Saskatchewan grows, one of the industries that will progress quickly will be coal mining.

The actual deposits of coal in Alberta and in Eastern British Columbia, chiefly in the Peace River valley, have been estimated at from 50 to 90 billion tons.

NEED ADVANCED INSTRUCTION IN THE STUDY OF AGRICULTURE

FARMING AS A SCIENCE AND AS A BUSINESS

More German Kultur

Liege University Is Being Used as War Stables

One would have imagined that in the very fitness of things the army in occupation of Belgium would have drawn a line against using classical buildings like the University of Liege for any other than scholarly purposes.

But the fact is that the German general in command of that division considers the Kultur of the Belgians on a level with a horse stable, and the wonderful collection of books that formed the feature of that centre of learning may be, and probably is, used up as fuel. No one is allowed to enter, and the knowledge of the desecration of the buildings has been obtained through the interference in German camps of two great and good men, professors of the university. An eye-witness of the German depredations of Liege, the Belgian general, anatomy we had once 200 soldiers of the 57th Regiment under Major Wunderlich, who transformed our building with increasing mass of filth. These men were drunk all the time, leaving after two days some 1,200 to 1,300 wine bottles (all empty of course), and the men, by the way, who during the terrible night of the 20th-21st August, 1914, burned the whole Rue de Pitteurs and part of the Quai des Perchures.

Some months later, in January, 1915, our hospital was taken by the Germans, members of the staff being brutally dismissed. "So the men were no more respected than our buildings, as is further shown by the story of what happened to my colleagues, Professor Leon Fredericq, the world-known physiologist, a brother of the Ghent historian, Fredericq's youngest son, a military surgeon in the Belgian army, was taken prisoner by the Germans into Liege, and somehow managed to escape. The Germans then took his father and sent him to snail, leaving him, a man of 63 years old, for 36 hours without food. Incredible though sounds, General Kowlew, the German Commander in Liege at that time, admitted that Fredericq was not responsible in any way for his son's evasion. After three days they released him, but took his other son instead and kept him for ten days more in the Fort de Chartreux.

This whole absolutely authentic story may seem perfectly grotesque yet at the same time it is perfectly characteristic of the German military spirit. I tell it here as I am trying to interest the American public in the fate of France and Fredericq to show that the non-Freudist version of the arrest of these men is perfectly plausible, as the above-mentioned facts make it clear and because anything can be expected from the crazy arrogance of the German soldiers."

What Western Canada Is

Only About Twelve Per Cent. of Its Arable Land Under Cultivation

"Western Canada," in the sense that the term is generally used, comprises the three prairie provinces of Alberta, Saskatchewan and Manitoba. The area of each province is roughly 250,000 square miles. The total area, 750,000 square miles, is six times the size of the British Isles and nearly four times the size of either France or Germany. It is five times the size of the state of California, sixteen times that of the state of Illinois, twenty times that of the state of New York, and ninety times that of the state of Massachusetts.

These three provinces comprise a land area of 483,000,000 acres. At least 200,000,000 acres are good farming land that can be put under crop, but less than 25,000,000 acres are actually cultivated at the present time — that is to say, only about twelve per cent. of what is known to be good is at present utilized. All the remainder is fine arable land that awaits settlers.

The population of these three provinces is about one-million and three-quarters.

Emigration After the War

There will be emigration, and the best thing we can do is to see that as far as possible the emigrants go to our own colonies. To bring that about will require not only aid from this country to the individual, but the help of all the colonies in making entrance to their lands as easy as possible. Here is ground upon which all the governments should work together to have a practical scheme in readiness for the end of the war. Westminster Gazette.

"A glance at this picture carries me back home."

"That's one way of beating the railways."

At the present time most of the Canadian provinces provide instruction in elementary agriculture for pupils who attend the public schools. The teachers — for the most part girls — are given a month's training in some institution, and are then graduated as instructors of the subject. The course usually covers botany, entomology, gardening, animal husbandry, field husbandry, and nature study. A nicely engraved certificate is given at the end of the course and the teacher goes home filled with the happy dignity of having broadened her sphere of work.

These teachers cannot teach agriculture, cannot even make a bluff at it. The farmer knows this. What would happen if the public schools, the local school teacher who instructs his children in "agriculture" for information regarding crop rotation for a certain piece of land on his farm? She would probably turn to her note book and read him something taken down from a professor's lecture. He would grin if he were good natured, if not he would say something.

Can you think of another subject on the curriculum of any institution in which you would care to have your child instructed by a teacher of similar training? I think not.

In Canada we do not make agriculture a high school subject. We attempt to teach the very elements of the science, that is all. Should the boy want further instruction he must go to college. All farmers' sons cannot do this. The consequence is that serious agricultural education is not yet touched by the masses of the farming communities, except through agricultural journalism and societies formed among the farmers.

In the United States more is being done. In the Duluth, Minn., high school practical work of a decidedly "secondary" nature has been undertaken. In 1914 the school board voted $150 for the purchase of a creamery outfit such as could be recommended for a farmer with ten cows. The equipment, all hand-power models, consists of cream separator, butter churn, cream butter tester, acidity test outfit, salting outfit, moisture test scale, butter print scale, cream scale, cream cans and minor utensils.

The agricultural department, then in its second year only, was already one of the most active divisions of Central High school, and the new equipment was received with such interest and enthusiasm that in the 1914-1915 school year the embryo farmers made a total of 2,890 pounds of the best creamery butter in 170 churnings.

The Student Creamery Company of the high school is an organization among the boys of the agricultural department similar on a small scale to the most approved type of farmers' co-operative creameries, for the purpose of obtaining both the manufacturing and the business experience of creamery practice. The student members produce the cream and milk by purchase, and sell to their creamery, profits from which they share in proportion to their respective patronage.

Agriculture advanced enough to be of practical benefit, cannot be taught in the high school. Why should there not be a school farm? Farming could then be studied as a science, as an art, and as a business. The cost would be great, for farming is a profitable employment and the school farm must not only run itself but must also pay dividends on money invested.

Of course there would be many details to arrange, much prejudice to overcome, in fact much hard work, for the agricultural educationist who would undertake the work. Elementary education should be supplemented by secondary education. The high school graduate of the future, if he is to spend his life on the farm, should be able to turn to account his education in the school. This cannot be done as our courses of study now exist. Theory should give place to practice.

In preaching before His Imperial Majesty the kaiser recently, the official chaplain to his court concluded a powerful eulogy upon the Divinity of the House of Hohenzollern with these somewhat mournful words: "We have been more severely tried than before, and have suffered more terrible losses. We know that if we win — despite the superiority of our enemies — it will be a miracle performed by God's hand."

Twelve months ago the same chaplain declared that the day of miracles had passed!
